JOIN US FOR A DISCUSSION EXPLORING
THE LONG-TERM IMPACTS OF THE
1945 TRINITY TEST ON COMMUNITIES
IN NEW MEXICO.

Join us for a discussion exploring the long-term impacts of the 1945 Trinity Test on communities in New Mexico with members of the Tularosa Basin Downwinders Consortium including co-founder Tina Cordova and steering committee member, Paul Pino. The discussion will be moderated by Alicia Inez Guzman, writer for Searchlight New Mexico, where she focuses on nuclear issues and the impact of the nuclear industry. The program is in conjunction with the opening Nuclear Communities of the Southwest an exhibition which places historical objects in conversation with artist responses to New Mexico's involvement in the development of nuclear technologies.
